FOREWORD

IN the past half century, nearly a thousand members of the University Cottage Club have, during their undergraduate days, lived the better part of four thousand years in Princeton. To compress forty centuries of individual experience into the actual passage of a half of one . . . to cut even fifty years down to the measurements of a book . . . is a task to be initiated with temerity, conducted with inadequacy, completed with humility. It has been the consistent policy and practice of the Cottage Club to consider its life as a vital integral part of the University life . . . to train its new members to believe that the privilege of membership carries with it no smug sense of social security, but rather a greater obligation of service to Princeton . . . wholeheartedly to promote and foster participation of its members in every phase of Princeton activity. The task of its historical abridgement is therefore doubly difficult. To all those contributors from every section, who have helped it to build this Cottage Chronicle, the Committee extends its sincere gratitude . . . and to any to whom an injustice has been done through error or omission, its humble apologies.

COTTAGE CHRONICLE

VICTORIAN GOTHIC

JIMMIE'S EIGHTIES

FIFTY years ago in the spring of 1886, the College of New Jersey had been brought by the Reverend James McCosh, then its President, to the very borders—as he himself said—whence it was to be carried over into the land of promise of a full-fledged university. Note carefully the phraseology employed by the diminutive Scottish dominie, beloved “Jimmie” of immortal memory, to identify the place he governed—and you have the key to its character as an institution! Scottish as the historic borderland from which he came to Princeton, ecclesiastical as the Church he so valiantly proclaimed, ardent as any Princetonian worthy of the name, he coined his rugged phrases from the Biblical language of Presbyterianism.

So dominant, in fact, was the Presbyterian tradition that the college was very generally, and quite inaccurately, regarded as a denominational institution. Students did not come to it to educate themselves; they came to be educated. Individuality of thought, finding little outlet in a curriculum where even the slightest latitude of elective studies was a comparatively recent innovation, found liberal expression in campus, rather than academic, activities. Life was frugal, even in terms of the bare necessities—yet rich in the manner of its living. Many a quaint and esoteric Princeton custom was woven during those colorful days into the vast tapestry of precious Princeton tradition—woven from the very threads of an existence which demanded a certain youthful ingenuity and invention for the happiest evolution of its pattern.

There were only a scant six hundred students. The faculty totalled barely forty. The present Library building, now so inadequate for the University's needs, was still a part of the McCosh vision to be obtained a decade later. Dormitories such as Patton and Cuyler, Holder and Joline, Campbell ('77) and '79, and even Blair and Little, were years distant. Even the so-called older buildings of Brown and Dod, the Art Museum, Alexander Hall, and the present Ionic homes of Whig and Clio had not yet been constructed. In the spring of 1886, Nassau Hall, the now demolished Marquand Chapel, School of Science, and Dickinson Hall, Reunion, West, Witherspoon, and Edwards, just about constituted the entire campus—and believe it or not, Witherspoon and Edwards were comparatively new and much admired buildings!

Witherspoon Hall, in particular, must have delighted the eye of the venerable Jimmie McCosh as he paused at the western end of his daily “constitutional” before turning to traverse again the famous Walk which so appropriately bears his good old Scottish name today. Victorian Gothic, whatever that means—blue-grey stone—housing one hundred and forty undergraduates in sixty commodious suites—and affectionately regarded at that time as one of the most pretentious and perfectly appointed dormitories in the United States! Yet for all its magnificence it had no lavatories and no baths. It is said, in fact, at this university-dawning of a college then one hundred and forty years old, there were still in the entire institution only the Crystal Palaces of Nassau Hall and two tin bathtubs in the old Gymnasium to minister to the needs of six hundred undergraduates. The old Gymnasium, by the way, stood near the western end of the campus between the present sites of Alexander Hall and '77 Dormitory.

Just as the art of modern plumbing played little part even in the lowliest degree in a course at Princeton fifty years ago, so did the equivalent necessity of eating receive equally scant consideration from the college authorities. True, there was the beginning of a “Commons” in the old red brick University Hotel, which later housed a genuine, and in fact compulsory, underclassmen’s university-restaurant at the corner of Nassau Street and Railroad Avenue (now University Place) where the University Dining Halls now stand. It was totally inadequate, however, for the three-times-a-day demand of six hundred students. Every man then made his individual arrangements with local restaurants, boarding-houses, or the University Hotel. It made little difference where—the uniform standard of food, built around endless dishes of greasy mashed potatoes and stewed Jersey tomatoes, was proverbially unpalatable. In fact, it was in those days an old Princeton custom—upon the numerous occasions of culinary offenses particularly revolting to eye, palate and stomach—to lift the tablecloth bodily by all four corners and fling the offending meal out the window into the street.

In the effort to get better food, in the natural comradeship of men who from time immemorial have coalesced in friendly groups rather than herds or droves, and as the result of that ever-present expression of the Princeton democracy—men working their way through college by “managing” or otherwise serving meals—informal eating clubs had begun to develop as the student enrollment grew larger. During the four-year course of the Class of 1888 at Princeton, there were nineteen of these clubs in Freshman, nineteen in Sophomore, and the same number in Junior year, and twelve in Senior year, as listed in the Bric-a-Bracs of that period, many of them self-perpetuating. They usually changed, however, from one year to another; they were recruited from one, two, three, or even four classes indiscriminately—although most of them were upperclass organizations; they had in general no continuity and consequently no permanence. They did not live. They merely ate.

When the Class of 1888 entered college in the fall of 1884, one more club of this informal character was organized. Seven Freshmen, all hailing from the general district of Greater New York, commenced to eat their meals together in a second floor room at Dohm's on Nassau Street just east of Witherspoon Street, opposite the entrance to the path which crosses the campus diagonally in front of Nassau Hall. They called their club "The Seven Wise Men of Grease"—one of the most appropriate puns ever concocted, according to the first-hand memory of surviving members, who still complain vehemently of the deficiencies in the menu they suffered fifty years ago. At the beginning of Sophomore year, the club—preserving its original membership and still more original name, and thus exhibiting even in its infancy a vitality most uncommon to eating clubs of that day—removed down Nassau Street to the University Hotel. Here the "Seven Wise Men" in their still greater wisdom as Sophomores, came into culinary contact with other eating clubs similar to their own; and, with new friendships formed in addition to those with which they had entered Princeton, split—in the spring of 1886—into two groups.

The majority—Elias Hicks Herrick, Howard McWilliams, James Frederick Talcott and Teunis Williamson, all of whom were native New Yorkers—decided to form a new and permanent upper-class eating club with Osmund Howard Harvey of Baltimore, Thomas McClure Peters of New York, Jacob Riegel of Philadelphia, Walter Willard Ross of Chicago. The minority of three, Robert Staunton Adams, Ernest Trow Carter, and Thornton Floyd Turner, decided to join forces with other impending Juniors in the only other Princeton eating club which had any pretensions to permanence at that time (the Ivy Club, informally organized a few years before in Ivy Hall next to the Episcopal Church on Mercer Street, and then ensconced in a small Prospect Street clubhouse on the present site of the Colonial Club). Of these three "Seven Wise Men," Turner soon resigned from the Ivy Club—the other two continuing their membership therein.

And so from the nucleus of a Sophomore Eating Group, eight '88 men ("O" Harvey, "Hicks" Herrick, "Mac" McWilliams, "Zip" Peters, "Prince" Riegel, "Bum" Ross, "Senator" Talcott, "Tunie" Williamson—nicknames as listed in the Class of 1888 Nassau Herald) founded an upper-class eating club, a precedent followed in the formation of every other undergraduate eating club in Princeton since that time. With the close of college in June 1886, they began looking for a suitable place to eat—more comfortable than the University Hotel, more accessible than the distant and still unpaved Prospect Street—and at the opening of college in September 1886, they found it. They all roomed in the then luxurious Witherspoon Hall, which formed as a southern boundary a great open campus with West and Reunion on the east, Nassau Street on the north, and the University Hotel and Railroad Avenue on the west. The old Gymnasium with its two baths and other appurtenances stood in the very middle of this spacious square, which was the center of undergraduate life out of the classrooms.

Directly south of University Hall, on the east side of Railroad Avenue in the spot now occupied by Hamilton Hall, stood a small wooden house. It was topped by a not unsightly sort of mansard roof, surrounded by a picket fence and hedge, flanked by typically generous Princeton shade trees. It was known as "The University Cottage." The location was ideal, the house was perfectly planned for their purposes, the lease was available. With E. Hicks Herrick and J. Frederick Talcott as the prime movers and organizers, they decided to rent the Cottage. Herrick's father, the late Elias Jacob Herrick, came down from New York, and as a person of that financial responsibility which the undergraduates lacked, signed the lease. The eight founding members immediately employed a well known Princeton negro couple, Nelson and wife, as waiter and cook respectively—soon augmented by their son as houseboy or "buttons"—and moved in.

The dining-room, enjoying southern and eastern exposures, was cheerful and sunny. It was comfortably furnished. The meals, cooked and served in that inimitable Nassau "Yassuh" Southern style—culminating every week with a Sunday dinner featuring chicken fricassee and ice cream—seemed to establish an all-time high in the Princeton cuisine. Under the benign and kindly influence of even the first few meals, they commenced to discuss plans for the perpetuation of this new-found haven, of this newly founded club. They debated the question of a name. Hicks Herrick had just returned from a delightful summer vacation at his father's cottage in Newport. The new clubhouse, compared with other Princeton catering standards of that day, seemed, despite its simplicity, to be equally luxurious. The building was even known as "The University Cottage," if not by some magical portent of good omen, at least by honest coincidence. And so it came to be. The Eastern majority prevailed over a minority, which in this case consisted of one lone Chicagoan, Walter Ross, staunchly holding out for a Western Indian name. The Club was officially named "The University Cottage Club."

With Hicks Herrick as the first informal Treasurer, or Manager—collecting the money perhaps by virtue (or by the compulsion) of his father's signature on the lease, at a weekly rate still vivid in the recollection of J. Frederick Talcott as $7 per man—the Club moved smoothly on through Junior year. Members of other classes were invited from time to time to come in and share the temporary expense, if not the more permanent privileges of the organization—but control remained with the original eight founders. They were an active group: Herrick and Williamson sang with the Glee Club, as did the late Dr. William E. Studdiford, who later became an Associate Member of the 1888 section (and in those days when the grand old institution of Princeton singing was being founded on the finest kind of base—Studdiford's famous second bass, perhaps—the Glee Club provided the greatest mid-winter activity between football and baseball seasons); Talcott played lacrosse, being a member of the championship team in 1888; Ross was a contestant in the intramural track meets, specializing in the mile walk and versatile enough to win a coveted oratorical prize as well; McWilliams, present Treasurer of his Class, was the leader of the Banjo Club, of which Harvey was also a member; Herrick, McWilliams and Talcott served with other leading lights on the Sophomore Reception Committee; Herrick, Peters, and the late Richard Waln Meirs, who later joined the '88 section as an Associate Member, were active in the old Dramatic Association, forerunner of the Triangle Club; and Conrad Hewitt, who also became an Associate Member from 1888, enjoyed the enviable distinction of being one of the only four men in the class virtually pioneering a trail towards a Civil Engineering degree.

The widely diversified activities of the original members of the Cottage Club can be more clearly comprehended when it is realized that the Nassau Herald published upon the occasion of their Commencement exercises, presents only a very limited field open to undergraduate endeavor and competition of any kind. Glee Club, Banjo Club, Chapel Choir, Nassau Literary Magazine, Princetonian, Dramatic Association, football, baseball, track, and lacrosse, comprised almost the full scope of extra-curricular life. No minor sports were listed, so characteristic of modern times—no hockey, crew, golf, polo, swimming, basketball, soccer, gun club, rugby. Tennis was played throughout the spring term, and a number of the Cottage founders, such as "Tunie" Williamson and "Jake"

Riegel, were experts—but there was no college team. There was no Tiger, no Triangle Club, no Senior or Undergraduate Council, no final special honors, such as Phi Beta Kappa, Rhodes Scholarships, or individual cup-awards for outstanding undergraduate performance. In the closing days of the 1880's there were just about three major events: the annual football game with Yale, picturesque scene of chrysanthemum haircuts and canvas jackets on the field, with coaching parties drawn up in tally-hos on the sidelines; the mid-winter trip of the Glee Club, accompanied by either the Banjo Club or the Mandolin Club, which engaged in deadly rivalry for the coveted honor; and the annual baseball series with Yale.

In between these red-letter days, the undergraduates attended classroom lectures and compulsory Chapel with sufficient regularity and interest to graduate—and devoted a major part of their attention to the unending improvisation of "horse-play." At the opening of college the Sophomores horsed the Freshmen—commencing with a series of so-called Proclamations (great handbills and posters prescribing, in no uncertain or flattering terms, the exact restrictions under which Freshman conduct was to be regulated), and continuing on indiscriminately throughout the year. Then with the initiation of the verdant Freshmen carried to a great completion, everybody horsed everybody else for the remaining three years. Practical jokes were practised impartially upon faculty and undergraduates in a broad slapstick sort of four-year comedy which became for many years thereafter the accepted popular symbol of college life. And yet it is quite amazing to thumb over the faded yellow pamphlets that constitute the Bric-a-Bracs and *Nassau Herald*s of this pre-university period, and find—to take the Senior Class of 1888, for instance, composed of exactly one hundred members—that whereas "horse" was the favored sport with a vote of 31% (football second with 30%, baseball third with 20%), 29% supported themselves wholly or in part (although $787 was the average cost of Senior year), only 51% smoked, only 42% drank. And by way of further identification, 51% wore beards or mustaches, 46% played musical instruments—and there was an overweening and laudable interest in Oratory.

Somewhere along the line in the spring of 1888, following the great March blizzard still memorable in the minds of hardy survivors and in the records of the Weather Bureau, the 1888 founder-members of the University Cottage Club elected an official 1890 section in order to perpetuate the institution. Self-contained in the harmony of the little group which had "stuck together" through the expedient of forming the new club—thus establishing in its very foundation the basic principle of consolidating through undergraduate days those lifetime friendships which have characterized the Cottage Club ever since—the 1888 members had never formed a permanent 1889 section. Various members of that Class had come and gone through the “second” dining-room in the little house, and some of them joined permanently later—but no real effort was made to establish the institution on a continuing basis until 1888 elected another permanent section from the Class of 1890 to take its place.

THE GOLDEN NINETIES

The new members from the Class of 1890, as officially carried in the Club roster today, were: Alexander N. Bodine, J. Edward Farnum, Bernard S. Horne, Albert Gould Jennings, Howard W. Perrin, Howard C. Phillips, G. Van Dusen Rickert, Reginald K. Shober, Louis D. Speir, and Edgar M. Smith—with John I. Bright, Roscoe H. Channing, and Albert E. Kennedy, listed as Associate Members. Of all these men, many of whom rendered yeoman service to the Club through the anxious days of trials and tribulations that were soon to come, it may perhaps be fairly said that Albert Gould Jennings was the mainstay of the institution. It was Jennings who drew up; with Richard Bruff Lyon '91, the Club's first Secretary, the Certificate of Incorporation, dated December 3, 1889. It was Jennings who formally filed it in a New Jersey Court of Chancery one week later, December 10, 1889. It was Jennings who served in his Senior year as the first President of the incorporated club, and after graduation as the first Chairman of the Board of Governors. And it was Jennings who helped to form a strong section from the Class of 1891, including in its personnel the late William Bayard Blackwell, second President of the Club, an invaluable aid and ally in promoting, financing and building the first new clubhouse.

The quarters of the original “Cottage” which had at first seemed so commodious to the eight founders, had been shrinking, so to speak, as the sections grew larger with the increasing prestige of the institution. Princeton was fast moving over the borderline so eloquently described by President McCosh some years before—rapidly advancing from one term to another towards the true status of a university. Dr. McCosh had resigned in June 1888, withdrawing, so to speak, with the illustrious Class of that year, whose members had founded the Cottage Club two years previously. Throughout his administration of twenty years, Princeton had received three million dollars in gifts and bequests, one-third of this sum going into the erection of fourteen new buildings. He was succeeded by Dr. Francis Landey Patton, whose fourteen-year term as President (1888-1902) was to demonstrate equally great advances—including another three million dollars and the further addition of seventeen new buildings on the campus.

Twin cornerstones of the beautiful Grecian temples housing Whig and Clio Halls were laid at Commencement 1890. Dod Hall was built in the same year. The Museum of Historic Art had been erected in the preceding year of 1889. Brown Hall was on the way, built in 1892. Alexander Hall dates from 1893. It was a building age for Princeton—building not merely to accommodate an institution that was to double itself under Dr. Patton's administration (603 students in 1888 and 1354 in 1902; 40 faculty members in 1888 and 100 in 1902) but planning ahead, in addition, for the very fullest realization of old Jimmie McCosh's vision. Princeton was approaching its Sesquicentennial in 1896—when further gifts and developments were to be momentarily signaled by officially changing its proud old name from the "College of New Jersey" to "Princeton University."

Yes—the 'Nineties were Golden; golden to Princeton, golden to her students, and golden to that small segment of university life in the University Cottage. The first annual Club Dinner, of which there is any record, was held Monday, June 9, 1890. A copy of the menu, commencing with clams, consommé printanière and hors d'oeuvres variés, continuing with snapper farcis à la diable, croquettes de ris de veau and filet de boeuf au champignons, to mention just a few courses, terminated with the cryptic remark in somebody's pencilled notation: "Only three took the last course." Nevertheless the handwriting of eleven valiant trenchermen who signed their names on the back is firm, bold, undaunted—even after forty-six years. Those were the days when men were men—and dinners were eleven-course banquets.

The next dinner, the last to be held in the old clubhouse, celebrated the graduation of 1891—with the house boarded up solid against any possible intrusion. The Club had survived so many difficulties, however, ranging from the wholly unwarranted summons served upon the 1891 section to appear before the faculty as a "secret society" to the havoc wrought upon its members by a pet monkey, that the perils of another graduating dinner were but slightly regarded. Financial difficulties were a more formidable matter. The Class of 1890 had ripped out the partitions on the second floor of the Cottage to install a pool and billiard room, and—with Albert Jennings winning a handsome "gold cue" as Club champion in a tournament which lasted six weeks—a certain additional revenue accrued at 10 cents a cue, plus soft drinks in addition to board.

Nevertheless more room was needed—and the Golden 'Nineties were a building age. With plans tentatively started in 1890, and with a bond issue dated June 1, 1891, the present property on Prospect Street, measuring approximately 150 feet by 200 feet, was purchased for about $4,000. The first five bond certificates were issued to Albert Jennings '90—$100 each, signed by John C. B. Pendleton '92, as President, Carleton S. Mather '93, as Treasurer, and William Bayard Blackwell '91, as Treasurer of the Building Committee. The list of the other generous subscribers is unfortunately incomplete—lost in antiquity after these forty-five years—but certainly it included names of many other staunch supporters, such as Hicks Herrick '88, Jacob Riegel '88, William Bayard Blackwell '91, Erskine Hewitt '91, and George Corning Fraser '93.

A financial statement issued several years later (1897) would indicate that there was incurred at this time and over the next few years, a total funded debt of $17,650 made up of a first mortgage for $8,000 held by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and a second mortgage securing a loan of $1,000 made by A. G. Jennings, and also securing the Club bonds to the amount of $8,650. With the lot purchased in 1891, and a large shingled house constructed in the then popular Victorian style of "cottage-residence" in 1892, the Club moved out of the "University Cottage"—and Tiger Inn, newly formed, promptly moved in, to be followed four years later by the Cannon Club. Thus the historic Cottage became a veritable incubator of the clubs that followed the establishment and occupancy of its first tenant—as did the Prospect Street house when removed from the Cottage lot in 1903 to make room for the present building.

The new site stands today as the best evidence of the foresighted wisdom which selected it. Five years after its establishment in 1892 as the permanent location of the University Cottage Club, the Ivy Club was able to dispose of its property across the street where the Colonial Club now stands, and signed the contract for a more permanent house of its own next to Cottage. As the undergraduate members moved in, the new building seemed to be quite as perfect as its location. The Club was growing in stature as an institution as well as in physical dimensions. A pin had been officially adopted not long before by the 1892 section, with Charles D. Hart of that Class largely responsible for its design in consultation with a Trenton jeweller. Although described today by its sponsors of 1892 as "very crude and badly designed," it nevertheless became the familiar gold square placed with its rectangular points in the shape of a playing card diamond and emblazoned with an interlocking monogram of the three initials U C C. The official red-yellow-and-black colors of the Club were also adopted about this time, under the supervision of George Trotter '91, long resident in Great Britain—the colors of the 17th Lancers of England, which was to merge twenty-five years later, after the Great European War, with the 21st Lancers—and soon the once-seen-never-to-be-forgotten hatband of the University Cottage Club added a note of new and brilliant color to the campus scene. Neckties came along at a later date—and many years later, in 1916, came the day, too (followed by watch charms supplanting the more ostentatious waistcoat pin in popularity), when the red-yellow-and-black colors were changed to a more subdued arrangement in green, silver and black. Today, of course, the original colors, officially recommended for readoption by the Board of Governors, again prevail as of old.

Yet the new house, the new pin, the new colors—and all the insignia and appurtenances of a Club with a capital C (or even of the Cottage Club with two capital C's) could not lighten the burden of debt which the organization was now carrying. Again Albert Jennings and others had proffered their never-failing assistance. A contemporary letter from an undergraduate officer, dated May 26, 1893, thanks him "in the Club's behalf for the interest you have taken in the Club and the aid you have given in fitting up the clubhouse . . . more especially for fitting up the sitting-room, which is known as 'Jennings Room'." Other graduate members, also, were generous contributors—as bonds were turned back to the treasury, miscellaneous gifts were made, household furnishings were donated. Active graduate interest, in fact, was the determining factor in the vicissitudes encountered at this time. A copy of the "Constitution and Officers of the University Cottage Club of Princeton, New Jersey," dated 1895, lists a Graduate Advisory Board of eight men: Jacob Riegel '88, Albert Gould Jennings '90, Louis D. Speir '90, William Bayard Blackwell '91, Arthur B. Gladwyn '91, Erskine Hewitt '91, Leonidas H. Besson '92, and Clarence H. Porter '95, and there were many others working in unofficial capacities. It is also worthy of note that the Constitution as originally adopted and in effect at this time, prohibited the use of intoxicating liquors in the clubhouse—a regulation maintained ever since as a House Rule to be suspended at the discretion of the House Committee only upon the occasions of the Annual Dinner, and of any luncheon or dinner in the private dining-room at which no active member is present. For the fiscal year ending August 1, 1897, the able and hard-working Treasurer of this Graduate Advisory Board (Louis Dean Speir '90) presented an official report recording substantial progress and incidentally testifying to his own ability—payment of interest on first mortgage, payment of interest on bonds, payment of interest on miscellaneous loans, and a substantial decrease in the annual operating deficit. The report closes with a favorable comparison of operation, and makes a forecast, subject to certain contingencies, "there will be an annual surplus of some $800, which, since we are now at last free from floating debt, can be devoted to reducing the funded debt" (of $17,650).

In the eventual reduction of that debt, in the continued outfitting and refitting of the clubhouse—in fact, in every good and gracious deed in behalf of the University Cottage Club over the precarious years, at the turn of the century when the institution was marching onward to financial independence—no measure of gratitude too great can be accorded to the late George Corning Fraser '93, who died December 10, 1935. Other high seats of honor, too, were empty at the great banquet celebrating the Club's Fiftieth Anniversary in March 1936. Many of those were missing to whom the occasion would have constituted a reunion enkindled by Princeton friendships of half a century, reaching from Jimmie McCosh's 'Eighties on and on into these Nineteen-Thirties—men such as John H. Sealy '91, William Bayard Blackwell '91, Richard Bruff Lyon '91, Leonidas Besson '92, and Carleton Sayre Mather '93, to call just a few of the names of old Cottage friends.

Over the central fireplace in the Club's dining-room today stands an ancient Latin proverb: "Ubi Amici Ibidem Sunt Opes" ("Where there are friends, there are riches"). No friendships, perhaps, were richer than those of the Golden 'Nineties. The once new clubhouse came eventually to be cold as a barn, with wind sweeping in at the windows and the undergraduates devoting most of their time to stuffing cotton into the cracks. But they were accustomed no less than their predecessors to the rigors of Spartan life. Even in the closing days of the century, the only heat in the dormitories came from fireplaces; the only running water was to be found on the first floor of each dormitory entry; baths were obtainable free to those who carried their own towels to the old Gymnasium (and for the modest fee of 10 cents or 25 cents—recollection cannot specify exactly—at the Cottage Club). Yet despite all the hardships, life was rich with the zest and energy of youth.

The first Princeton Inn, which preceded the present hostelry of that name, had opened for business on a few acres of the historic estate, Morven, just west of Bayard Lane, in September 1893. Its initial bid for business happened to coincide with a period in Princeton history when, as one Cottage alumnus expresses it, "discipline wasn't overly strict, for Princeton in those days needed cash customers, and if breaches of rules were restrained at the point of physical violence to the Dean, one could usually get away with any mild form of amusement." And to a greater and greater extent, the old Inn came to be the center of these amiable diversions, at least insofar as they were conducted by the upperclassmen. Through all the later 'Nineties—even when the famous Cottage Club coach tally-ho'd its careening course to Yale football games—even when undergraduates went off to the Spanish War in 1898 and were given their diplomas in June 1899, even when all the rest of the Cottage Club were entertained by the late Henry E. E. Waggaman '00 over the Thanksgiving holidays at his Virginia shooting lodge—the Inn continued to be one of the great main rings of what, compared with present-day routine, seems to have been The Greatest Show on Earth.

"Our courses were not taken too seriously," observes a Cottage alumnus, whose college course straddled the closing days of the 'Nineties and the opening days of the Nineteen-Hundreds, "study being reserved for a few days before and during exams. However, we had to attend our lectures to avoid too many cuts. Breakfast at the club after chapel, lectures during the morning, lunch followed by a few games of pool. Then, in the spring and fall, across the way to the field to watch baseball or football practice. Lectures again until dinnertime. During all these activities of the day, there seemed always to be a poker game going on in one of the smaller rooms on the second floor, not the same men all along, but practically the same game. In the winter months, we spent a lot of time in the library, reading or just smoking and talking. We didn't have all the mystery stories there are nowadays.

"In the evenings some of us went to our rooms to do a little studying or reading. And then to the Inn for the important work of the day. We sat at large tables down in the basement, in what they called the grill room, though there was no grill and I never saw food ordered or eaten. Each of the clubs had a table of its own, and so we sat apart a little like the German Corps. We all had glass-bottomed pewter mugs, and we had all our friends scratch their names on them. I shudder a little when I think of the amount of beer we drank, the mere bulk of it and its low alcoholic content. At eleven o'clock the grill closed, and so to bed, singing as we walked across the campus:

When our college days are over, Arty Bave,
When we think how like a (deleted) you did behave,
We will sit and drink our beer
And thank God that you're not here,
When our college days are over, Arty Bave.

"And then in the warm days of spring, we would have keg parties down in Keg Hollow, sometimes with the newly elected section of the Sophomore Class. We would get one keg (a quarter barrel) for each four men. Would buy them from the dealer just across the railroad tracks and carry them to the Hollow. How could we drink and hold so much beer? Well, we did one without the other. We were classical scholars and we knew the old Roman customs."

Lest posterity, however, should ever malign the 'Nineties as having dreamed away a full decade in a golden haze of Pilsener, it is to be recorded that with all the diversions of the old Inn the undergraduates nevertheless wrote a brilliant chapter of activity into the annals of the Cottage Club. There was the late Franklin B. Morse '95, for instance, whose now fabulous versatility won him a halfback position and the Varsity P in football, the presidency of the Triangle Club, editorships on the Nassau Literary Magazine, Tiger and Bric-a-Brac, and other high honors. The late A. F. Holly, Jr., '95 played on the same football teams—with the late George C. Fraser '93, the late James McN. Thompson '94, and the late Edward Munn '95, as three consecutive football Managers—all members of the same club. Other Cottage men who played varsity football were R. H. Channing '90, P. R. Bonner '91, E. A. Dalton '91, Jesse B. Riggs '92, R. H. Warren '93, Henry G. Riggs '94, R. E. Dwight '97, T. Dudley Riggs '97, Albert Rosengarten '97, Frederick L. Smith '97 (also baseball), and A. V. Duncan '01; J. Bradley '97, W. W. Wilson '97, and G. H. Butler '98 were baseball Captains; Dudley Riggs '97 was on the track team; G. F. McKinney '91, J. P. Parker '92, and W. Ferguson '93 were baseball Managers.

Other activities of the 'Nineties, in addition to athletics, maintained an equally high standard. Nassau Literary Magazine editors included A. C. McCord '89 and F. B. Morse '95. D. W. McCord '89 was on the Princetonian board. J. I. Bright '90, J. H. Bailey '94, J. McN. Thompson '94, J. H. Bailey '94, and McCready Sykes '94 all served their term with the Bric-a-Brac. Sykes, of course, was also an editor of the Tiger along with the ubiquitous Morse. B. S. Horne '90, William J. Baird '95, G. P. Herrick '95, and Frank McCune '94 sang with the Glee Club. And even in those early days of the newly formed Triangle Club, the roster included F. B. Morse '95, as President, W. F. Hencken '95, as Business Manager, Meldrum Gray '96 as Manager, and Edwin T. Clark '99 as President—with other members such as C. Van B. Carroll '95, A. F. Holly, Jr., '95, and with Dramatic Association predecessors such as A. C. Hencken '93, F. G. Riggs '94, R. K. Schober '90, and H. W. Perrin '90 as President.

If the undergraduates drank too much beer in the 'Nineties, the most important question seems to be (suggesting Lincoln's famous answer to the charge that General Grant was addicted to whiskey), "What kind of beer did they drink?"

TWENTIETH CENTURY GEORGIAN

WOODROW'S DECADE

ABOUT the time that eight young men were founding a new club in Princeton and moving into "The University Cottage" in the fall of 1886, another young man—nine or ten years their senior, but also a Princetonian—was receiving a Ph.D. degree from the Johns Hopkins University. In the fall of 1890 he was called back to the College of New Jersey to take the Chair of Jurisprudence and Politics, where the popularity of his elective courses and the keen interest of his students quickly demonstrated his extraordinary genius as a teacher. Twelve years as Professor equipped him to become President of Princeton University in 1902—the first layman ever to hold that august position.

Some sixteen months before his inauguration, he had been invited as an Honorary Member of the Cottage Club to attend its Annual Commencement Banquet in 1901. Invitations had always been sent quite religiously to Honorary Members to attend these formal banquets where dinner jackets were the invariable rule—but in the memory of the undergraduates of those days at least, none had ever accepted. That Friday night in June 1901, however, one did accept—and quite characteristically. The festivities were in full swing, when suddenly William O. Morse '02, then an undergraduate officer, and the late Alexander Moffat '84, famed field-goal specialist in Princeton football history and an extremely active Associate Member of Cottage, beheld the distinguished guest walking with fixed purpose up the gravelled path. "Even now," says Morse, in telling the story, "I can hear Alec's rather shrill voice as it pierced the bedlam of sounds:

'Cheese it, fellows, here comes Woodrow Wilson!'

"The noise subsided instantly, and almost automatically a few of the older graduates grouped themselves into a sort of improvised reception committee. The transformation in the scene, although but a matter of seconds, was unbelievably complete. The dinner was a great success. Professor Wilson, as he was then, was of course called upon by Toastmaster Jesse Riggs '92 to speak first. If at that time the embryonic plans of a 'Quad' system were formulating in his mind, he gave no evidence of it. He spoke briefly, and while his remarks were limited to an expression of sentiment that was appropriate to the situation and the occasion, his words—always faultlessly chosen—were received with acclaim.

“The duty of speaking on behalf of the undergraduates had fallen to my lot. I was primed with my subject—the great need for a new clubhouse—but I was aghast when I was called upon immediately after Professor Wilson. However, I launched forth with: ‘Mr. Toastmaster and members of the University Cottage Club. This is the first time that I have ever heard Professor Wilson speak without the inevitable admonition “Gentlemen, you may now take the following dictation.”’ He was the only member of the Princeton faculty with whom I came in contact who dictated the notes on his lectures. As I spoke I looked across at him, and he was smiling—a broad, beaming, genuine, human smile. There are those who think that Woodrow Wilson was incapable of smiling just that way.”

How significant it seems, in the retrospect of many years, that the promotion, financing and construction of the Cottage Club’s magnificent new building was conducted under the administration of Woodrow Wilson as President of Princeton University—arch-enemy of the clubs and the undergraduate social system they represented! How amazing it seems that Wilson, vigorous proponent of the “Quad” system which would have done away with Princeton’s Clubs thirty years ago in the development of a House Plan similar to that now being adopted at Yale and Harvard, approved the Cottage plans. “The sketches herewith exhibited have the official sanction of the President of the University” states the formal report of the Building Committee of the Board of Governors, December 12, 1903, “and have been studied by various members of the Club, some of the University Trustees, and other gentlemen conversant with past building operations in Princeton; all suggestions received from these sources were brought to the attention of the architects, carefully considered and, where practicable, adopted.” And Wilson not only approved—he was a frequent and distinguished speaker in the Cottage Club in those days before and after the building of the new house.

He came there as Professor Wilson that memorable night in 1901 when—following the meeting of the undergraduate sections of 1901 and 1902 to discuss methods of procedure, to draft a letter to the Board of Governors and to energize the Alumni Membership generally—the movement to arouse graduate interest in building the present clubhouse was initiated. He came again and again as President Wilson, following his selection as Dr. Patton's successor in 1902. When the new house had been formally opened for occupancy, he is even reported to have launched his revolutionary social program at one of the fortnightly Cottage Club gatherings to which the undergraduates of the 1907 section invited prominent speakers of that day. And in June 1909, he attended still another Club banquet, this time with ex-President Patton, another honorary member, as his fellow guest—when both men, now in bitter opposition to each other, spoke with all the brilliant eloquence that might have been expected of Princeton's two greatest orators. Always an active part of the life of the University, the Cottage Club—no longer green and callow, but mature, poised, purposeful—stood in the very foreground of the bitter battle which was waged back and forth over the now historic ground of the Quad System, and which resulted eventually in Woodrow Wilson's resignation from the presidency in 1910.

Initiated in 1901, formulated in 1902, and finally promulgated in 1903, the erection of the new clubhouse was financed in the first few months of 1904. While the old house, dating from the spring of 1892, had become completely inadequate—in fact, almost uninhabitable—with the wear and tear of a decade now memorable in Princeton's growth, it was nevertheless clearly realized that the financial difficulties which had beset the Club by reason of the heavy indebtedness contracted on account of the old building, must not be repeated. The construction of a new house was not to be undertaken until its cost could be met without resort to a mortgage—yet the sum involved was too large to be collected in whole through a general solicitation of subscriptions. Some ten months before, in February 1903, the late Charles Follen McKim, of Messrs. McKim, Mead, & White, architects, had been requested to prepare plans. He made two visits to Princeton, where he inspected the Club's lot, the University buildings, and the undergraduate clubhouses; subsequently spent the summer in England studying the architecture of University towns and country seats; and upon his return in the autumn drafted plans for the new Cottage.

These plans called for "the erection of a three-story red brick structure of Georgian style (104 ft. front by 102 ft. deep, with an open central court 55 x 38 ft.) on the Club's lot on the south side of Prospect Avenue, standing back about 65 ft. from the street, with lawns in front and garden in the rear, the whole to be ultimately enclosed by a 4-ft. brick wall." The project further entailed "the acquiring of additional land back of the old lot, so as to give a plot 150 ft. on Prospect Street by 400 ft. in depth." The scheme of the house, furthermore, was so conceived as to utilize "the rear of the premises" in an unusually "attractive and livable" manner "both indoors and out," taking "full advantage of the southern view."

In terse, prosaic phrases such as these, the report of the Building Committee presented the bare specifications of a house, which was revealed in the architects' watercolor sketch as one of the most superb examples of Georgian Colonial architecture in the United States. Its spacious simplicity, conceived by one of the world's great architectural minds, whose genius for classical adaptations combining elegance and refinement of taste with an inimitable decorative sense, has never been surpassed—was magnificent beyond imagination. No mind, perhaps, save that of McKim could have conceived a Cottage such as this glorious castle in the air. Certainly all the king's horses and all the king's men of legendary prowess, could never have brought it down to earth for the University Cottage Club—save for the princely generosity of two men whose devotion to Princeton stands forever recorded in terms of monumental buildings and other benefactions made possible by munificent gifts.

Father and son, the late Stephen S. Palmer and Edgar Palmer '03, have wrought many miracles for Princeton. Town and Gown alike have been enriched intellectually, socially, recreatively, architecturally, by the liberality and wisdom of their gifts. Yet neither Palmer Stadium nor the Palmer Physical Laboratory—nor all the other countless Palmer contributions to the enrichment of Princeton as a university center—can overshadow even by their greater importance the character of the gift to Cottage thirty-three years ago. With the architect's plans representing nothing but a dream on paper, they offered to give some $60,000 (gave ultimately no less than $113,000) "provided $35,000, applicable in whole to the expenses of construction, be first raised in cash from among the other members of the Club." They asked only that their identity would be cloaked under an absolute anonymity, which the Committee observed in laconically stating: "It would have been necessary to abandon the present project in favor of one less costly, but for a generous offer from one of the Club Members."

The late George C. Fraser '93 was Chairman of the Building Committee, George William Burleigh '92, its Treasurer, the late Leonidas H. Besson '92 and the late J. McNaughton Thompson '94, its other members. George Fraser was also serving as Chairman of the Board of Governors, with George Burleigh as Treasurer, and William Otis Morse '02 as Secretary. The other members of this Board were Alexander Moffat '84, E. Hicks Herrick '88, Albert Gould Jennings '90, William Bayard Blackwell '91, John H. Sealy '91, L. H. Besson '92, Finley H. Lloyd '92, William F. Meredith '94, Francis G. Riggs '94, J. McN. Thompson '94, Frederick A. Norris '95, and Thomas Slidell '95. Ludolph H. Conklin '04, then President, and Walter D. Kimball '04, Corresponding and Financial Secretary, also served with this historic Board of Governors, as undergraduate representatives.

In December 1903, one of the most important formal banquets in the entire history of the Club was held at the University Club in New York. Then on December 21 the entire membership—then composed of 277 men (37 Active, 208 Graduate, 22 Associate, and 10 Honorary)—was circularized with the Building Committee's Report as approved by the Board, with the architect's plans, and with a blank for subscription. Within four months, 178 members (averaging $178 per man) had subscribed $31,685.15, and the grand total very shortly thereafter, with no less than 201 members contributing, rose to $37,151.46. This amount, raised by general subscription alone, was greater than the entire cost of the present Ivy Club and of most of the other clubs' houses. In other words, the prompt and generous response of 72% of the Club's membership, recruited from every classification thereof (including Honorary Members, such as the Hon. Grover Cleveland, Dr. Henry B. Cornwall, and Allan Marquand) had made possible the acceptance of the special Palmer subscription. Under the terms of that gift the entire general donation was to be applicable to construction; and by masterly handling of the whole project on the part of those in charge, it was available for that purpose. They had previously purchased another lot on Prospect Street, removed the old house thereto in June 1903 for the temporary occupancy of the 1904 and 1905 sections, and then in 1904 disposed of this entire property to the newly founded Tower Club (1902) at a substantial profit. They had persuaded old members to turn in old bonds as additional donations; they had shown a substantial surplus in undergraduate operation, as handled in three successive years by S. Herbert McVitty '02, Norman H. Donald '03, William G. Devereux, Jr., '04, and Walter D. Kimball '04; old mortgages and interest were paid off—so that the University Cottage Club stood clear and free of indebtedness of any kind. And so it stands today.

Ground was broken in the summer of 1904, with the late Burt L. Fenner, who eventually became a partner of Messrs. McKim, Mead & White, personally superintending the entire construction from beginning to end. Shortly thereafter the old house was sold, so that the 1905 section passed its Senior year taking its meals in the old Inn and renting a "Club Room" in University Hall. Nevertheless despite these exigencies, eight of its members were elected to the 1905 Class Day Committee (40% representation on a Committee of twenty men), two members received the coveted honors of Ivy Orator and Class President; another was leader of the Glee Club, and Harold H. Short, now Secretary of the Board of Governors, played All-American football on the varsity, in addition to his election as Class President. It is therefore evident that the Club maintained its consistent participation in undergraduate activities while watching the progress of the construction work on Prospect Street. The 1907 section, which in its Junior year was the first to occupy the new house with 1906, continued the usual active representation in undergraduate affairs—with Captain of the track team (W. M. Armstrong '07 holding this office in both Junior and Senior years), Captain of the hockey team (A. J. Zahniser '07), and the mainstays of the Triangle Club (Richard S. Barbee '07, President, and A. D. H. Osborne '07). One of these men, Arthur H. D. ("Rag") Osborne '07, also found time to be one of the illustrious co-composers of "The Cannon Song," written and first played on the Cottage Club piano—Princeton's most popular song, now known all over the country. Then came the 1908 section, with Trenholm H. Marshall, who was later to serve as a Trustee of Princeton University, and many others; 1909, with W. Heyward Myers, Jr., of baseball fame, Ralph D. Gamble, track Captain, Arthur H. Samuels, Triangle Club composer and conductor, David O. Meese, basketball Captain and track Manager, and H. Gray Treadwell, now Graduate Treasurer; 1910, with Clarence W. Peacock, hockey Captain, Brown Rolston, Triangle Club President, John R. Warner, varsity baseball, George H. Whiteley, Jr., varsity track, Walter M. Wilkins, Managing Editor of the Daily Princetonian and the Chairman of the Senior Council, and James B. Waller; 1911, including Maitland Dwight, Senior Class President and Captain of the first track team ever to defeat Yale, the late Francis R. Larkin, Manager of the Princeton Crew which established rowing as a major sport, Julian F. Thompson, Chairman of the Senior Council and Triangle Club President, and Menefee Clancy, Business Manager of the Triangle Club; and 1912, with an equally notable roster, including E. M. Barnhart, President of the Triangle Club, E. Paul Nevin, Triangle Club composer, John H. Carroll, and Dean Mathey, tennis player extraordinary, hockey player, Phi Beta Kappa, and now Trustee of Princeton University. The Triangle Club activities of Cottage Club members at this time and later, is recognized today in the present Board of Trustees of that organization composed of five men of whom four are Cottage Club members (John A. Larkin '13, Chairman and Treasurer, H. Gray Treadwell '09, Secretary, Julian F. Thompson '11, and Sidney D. Johnson '35).

The new house had been formally opened with a memorable banquet in June 1906. It was destined for a long period of still further development under unusually able graduate administration during the days, for instance, when Richard E. Dwight '97 served with notable distinction as Chairman of the Board of Governors. Following his resignation, the Club was fortunate in enlisting Albert B. Schultz '03, Harry I. Caesar '13, John A. Larkin '13, Trenholm H. Marshall '08, and Brown Rolston '10, as successive Chairmen of the Board. Their devotion to a task which demands an incredible amount of time and labor, resulted in the accomplishment of many objectives—including that of fully developing the plan of the clubhouse. Over the years the generosity of many sections and individuals has contributed increasingly to its furnishing, decoration, and embellishment. Stephen S. Palmer himself was the donor of the ancient carved fountain of pink marble in the center of the courtyard. The late Richard Waln Meirs '88, donor of the famous Cruikshank collection to the University, gave books to the Library, an exact reproduction of the famous Library in Merton College, Oxford University. It is one of the most impressive rooms, not only in the Cottage Club, but in the entire length and breadth of Princeton University. The framed print of the original Oxonian room which hangs in the Cottage library today is the gift of William E. Stevenson '22, Club President, track Captain, Rhodes Scholar. Voluntary subscriptions from 1908, 1909, and 1910 panelled the dining-room in English oak—completed in 1916 with ornamental plaster ceilings and carved mottoes over the fireplaces. Gifts from the 1914 section decorated the private dining-room on the second floor. The 1909 section furnished the "Ladies' Reception Room" in the northwest corner of the house—and eighteen years later, the 1927 section refurnished it, memorializing the late George Lea Lambert '27 and the late James Theodore Walker '27. Albert B. Schultz '03, for many years Chairman of the Board, and a constructive force today, was responsible for maintaining the general upkeep of the clubhouse throughout the difficult war years and immediately thereafter. Caleb S. Green '08, Erskine Hewitt '91, James McAlpin Pyle '06, Leonidas H. Besson '92, William Bayard Blackwell '91, George C. Fraser '93, and Louis Dean Speir '90 were the joint donors of the massive silver cup for individual scholarship award. George G. Dewey '96 was the donor of the decorative bronze eagle bracketed against the courtyard wall just west of the central doorway—historic memento of the Spanish War exploits of his illustrious father, the late Admiral George Dewey, Honorary Member of the Cottage Club. The 1890 section, many years ago, presented the handsome grandfather's clock in the main gallery—while the other grandfather's clock at the head of the stairs is a memorial to the late G. G. Reichner '98. Pictures, silverware, china, countless objects all over the house, have been contributed by alumni of every vintage all over the world. As the endless waves of incoming and outgoing classes continues, the Club is destined to develop ever greater and greater interest, not only to Cottage members, but to everyone interested in Princetoniana—as William Floyd Clarkson '17, serving as Chairman of the Memorial Committee, carries forward the great work he initiated single-handed several years ago.

And so the years pass on—each one green with a memory of its own. One can almost call them by name—distinct and individual as the waves of Homer! Whole decades marching in review! McCosh, the Molder; Patton, the Promoter; Wilson, the Wizard! The interregnum following Wilson's phoenix-flight into the highest realms of public life—then Hibben!

HIBBEN HARVEST

Professor John Grier Hibben was selected as the President of Princeton University by the Board of Trustees, in January 1912—following the two-year term served by the Hon. John A. Stewart, as President pro tem. Dr. Hibben's inauguration, celebrated May 11, 1912, marked the inner threshold of that promised land of "The University" so boldly predicted by Dr. McCosh twenty-five years before. Under the Wilson administration, the curriculum had been thoroughly reorganized; the Preceptorial System had adapted the "Tutorial" of the English universities to a Princeton locale, and the student body had begun to make a serious business of study, not merely under the enforcing regulations of a new discipline but mainly of its own volition. Under the Hibben administration of twenty years, Princeton swept on majestically into her present distinguished position as one of the ranking universities of the world. With over nineteen million dollars, or a fivefold increase, added to the endowment, with eighteen new major buildings constructed upon the campus, with student enrollment carried forward from 1,391 to the present restricted total of 2,295, at which the admission of entering candidates becomes increasingly selective—it is only natural that the undergraduate has advanced stride for stride with the institution of which he is a part.

The 1910 section, under the Wilson régime, in the spring of 1910, held the last Keg Party. The old Inn closed its convivial grill in 1912. Although the Nassau Inn, always a Princeton tradition, moved up into a new popularity—Cottage parties to welcome incoming Sophomores had moved to neutral territory in Lakewood, New Jersey. With the new section from 1911, the old Sophomore eating clubs had passed out of existence in the early spring of 1909, as the University Dining Halls became adequate at last to accommodate the underclassmen. Under the Patton administration, these clubs had flourished picturesquely in the peculiarly Princeton "Hat Followings"—Red Hat, Dark Blue Hat, Light Blue, White, Green, and others. Their members, selected by the outgoing groups each year, wore round-brimmed flannel hats of the perennial club colors. In horsing season, Red Hat, a famous Cottage "proving-ground," used to shift its style of headgear to a great-visored skullcap with paper orange wings attached to it in the manner of a Grecian helmet. In the Wilson days, they were organized to a still greater degree. Each one of their strange coined names, which filled the Bric-a-Bracs of those days—phonetically classic, but meaning nothing—always retained its suffix, or its vowel order, or some other characteristic of the word, handing this down from one class to another but not the word itself.

The 1912 section, with members serving in virtually every branch of major undergraduate activities, found time, nevertheless, to attend a Cottage Club dance in the spring of its Senior year—good-humoredly debated at the time by two factions pro and con, and destined to establish the first early precedent for the modern Cottage houseparties. The 1914 Senior Council, with George F. Phillips '14 as Chairman, recommended the abolition of horsing—Princeton's ancient ingenious method of Freshman initiation—and the 1915 Council, with Howard Froelick '15 as Chairman, and other Cottage members, abolished it at the opening of college in the fall. The Cannon Rush and the Election Rush passed into the limbo of ancient history as the result of Senior Council action a year later. Princeton was growing up—and most significantly the change was being measured and promoted by student opinion rather than University regulation. Even the pre-war blossoming of the undergraduate plant presented a marked departure from the fine flower of the 'Nineties and the earlier Nineteen-Hundreds, so long indigenous to Princeton.

With the entrance of the United States into the World War during the Easter vacation of the 1917 section, the entire campus was ablaze with the war fever. "C'est la guerre!" became the watchword—and the countersign to academic laissez-faire. Even when diplomatic relations with the German Imperial Government had been broken just before mid-year examinations, there began a natural cessation of undergraduate interest in scholastic work. The Princeton Battalion (R.O.T.C.) had been immediately organized—and with the declaration of war a few weeks later, intensive military training commenced. Following the University's announcement that full credit for second-term work would be given to any Senior in military or naval service, a number of the 1917 section departed at once—to enter officers' training camps or the Naval Reserve force at Newport. Others stayed on until Commencement—then with most of the 1918 Senior section and of the new 1919 Junior section also entering the service, they finally withdrew from Princeton at one time or another for the duration of the war.

Yet undergraduate life went on. Cottage was one of the few clubs to keep its house open. There were the Army officers to be taken care of—instructing for the most part in the newly established Aviation School. There was the Junior section from the Quadrangle Club and both Junior and Senior sections of the Charter Club, and there was the new 1920 Cottage section, elected after Sophomore mid-years in 1918. These groups shared the Club together for a time—and as C. F. Buechner, Jr., '20, then Club President (the only man ever to hold this office in his Junior year) reports the situation: "The Army officers we had invited to make their home with us at the Cottage Club were not all Princeton men—but fine fellows, and we enjoyed their company." Meanwhile, the Graduate Members, together with the Undergraduates, had enrolled a total of not less than 313 Cottage men in military service—with a record of heroism and sacrifice which is duly memorialized elsewhere in this publication.

Then with the Armistice, the Great Reunion began—the greatest, perhaps, that Princeton has ever witnessed—not the familiar reunion of alumni returning for Commencement, but an unforgettable reunion of the undergraduates returning to college. Back they came, these young émigrés, in twos and threes, in squads, platoons, and whole battalions! The Class of 1919 had a Senior year consisting of two six-week periods for the first term, and one of about three months for the second—and what a year was packed into that delirious interlude! In one last fling before Prohibition, the Nass roared again—echoing and re-echoing to its very rafters with a new cadence, a never-to-be-repeated thrill, as voices joined once more in that grand old refrain: "Going Back—Going Back—Going Back to Nassau Hall!"

The Volstead Act, passed over the veto of a distinguished Cottage Honorary Member in July 1919, resulted in social changes everywhere—none more marked perhaps than those in Princeton. When college opened, the Nass was closed—and with this enforced removal of Princeton's great school of choral singing, folklore, and general open debate, out-of-town week-ending began in earnest. The 1920 and 1921 section members, however, celebrated the first of the modern house-parties over one memorable week-end—as Marquand Chapel and Dickinson Hall burned to the ground—and a few weeks later, members of the 1920 section introduced the Beer Suit, new style: wearing a black armband to the memory of John Barleycorn, their patron saint since these outfits had first been introduced in 1914. 1922, 1923, 1924—the years run faster as this inadequate narrative proceeds along its course! Tuned to the tempo of a modern Princeton, they did move swiftly—but so crowded with events still vivid in the recollection of the sections of that day, that it seems a great injustice to pass by them so lightly in the limitations of printing space so largely filled by the early years of which all record will soon be lost. It was in 1924, for instance, that the venerable old Princeton customs were arraigned as a body. Horsing had gone ten years before. Then the rushes, then a whole series of Freshman restrictions, then the Nass, then miscellaneous traditions—until with a collapse of Princeton football from its recent high standards as participated in by George F. Phillips '14, Rudolph Eberstadt '17, Charles F. Latrobe '17, Wm. L. McLean '17, Forest L. Williams '19, John K. Strubing, Jr., '20, Arthur P. Davis '21, Armant Legendre '21, Joseph D. Scheerer '21, and Harland F. Baker '22, it was charged that only by the restoration of these old customs could Princeton spirit be revived. And so the “Undergraduate Revolution” occurred with Henry S. Pole’s 1924 Senior Council in the thick of the legal fray, and with a Beer Suit emblazoned with a bomb and a horseshoe emerging as its epitaph.

Nineteen Twenty-Five marked a return to undergraduate “normalcy” about the time that normalcy itself was to be found in the language of officialdom, if not in the dictionary. The section of that year was the first to graduate under the so-called Oxford System—of which Dr. Hibben had expressed the hope and expectation that the new plan of upperclass study might better equip Princeton men “for the larger and the true responsibilities of that type of American citizenship which is capable of World Service.” Standards were being elevated a notch or two higher with the opening of every new building—and the building boom of those days, backed by the richest funds the University had ever known, was filling every nook and corner of the campus. Yet the Seniors, for all their greater sophistication, kept an old-fashioned sense of values, nonetheless. They debated quite earnestly, for instance, whether to change the Beer Suit from white to blue. And so it went.

With the increasing business depression of 1930 and 1931, the Club again encountered financial problems—not the kind it had solved and forgotten a generation previously, but no less acute. They were problems as new as Roosevelt’s New Deal! Many an undergraduate could not afford to continue his membership, many an eligible candidate could not afford to join—or so they thought, until the full advantage of H. Gray (Hatch) Treadwell's treasurership began to make itself manifest. All those who had ever served on the Board of Governors with him—and they were legion—finally tendered a special banquet in his honor at the Racquet Club, New York, one memorable night in January 1934, and gave him a handsome silver cigarette box (just a busman's holiday for one who serves in his non-Princetonian hours as an executive officer of Tiffany & Co.) as a small token of their esteem after fifteen years devoted service. No statement of Treadwell's trusteeship, however, can be accurately recorded without paying equally generous tribute to the years of faithful service rendered by his able predecessor, Norman H. Donald '03, whose active support in many other capacities as well has long been memorable.

The 1932 section was the last to have its diplomas signed by President Hibben—and the first to see Football Coach Crisler arrive in Princeton. Then the headlines came thick and fast—culminating in incredible tragedy: At the opening of college in 1932: "Edward D. Duffield '92, Princeton President Pro Tem"; and at its closing in June 1933: "Harold Willis Dodds elected Princeton President"; and then in the spring of 1934: "John Grier Hibben Killed in Automobile Crash!" Three Presidents in two years—three of the seven the Cottage Club has known in half a century! Repeal—the Nass—Harvard renewal—Yale perennial—Asa Bushnell's Invitation Track Meets, with Alexander McWilliams '35, Club President, serving also as track Captain—Crisler—Lea, LeVan, Rulon-Miller, Spofford!

Witnessing the reestablishment of Princeton football upon an all-time high peak of performance, the present day of the 1936 and 1937 sections marks even more auspiciously the full attainment of the educational goal towards which the University had been steadily advancing over half a century. Gratifying as the renaissance of Princeton athletics may be, it is noteworthy that this and other manifestations of extra-curricular supremacy have come, not at the sacrifice of, but concomitantly with, the achievement of the highest scholastic standards the University has ever known.

Undergraduate life today is fuller, richer, finer, than at any time in Princeton history. And playing a distinguished part as always in the contemporary college scene, the members of the 1936 and 1937 sections are establishing another brilliant record, not only upon the football field, but in many other activities as well. Penn Holsapple '36, for instance, President of the Club, has been a member of the varsity hockey team for three years. He was also a member of the varsity football squad for two years, and has served as undergraduate representative on the Council on Athletics. Garrett B. LeVan '36, Secretary-Treasurer of the Club, has played halfback on the varsity football team for three years, outfielder on the baseball team for two years, and was awarded both the Baseball Cup and the Poe Football Cup in 1935. In addition to football, baseball and hockey (with E. B. Savage '36 as Captain of the latter team in his Junior year), the 1936 section is also represented on the soccer, lacrosse and track teams—and Walter Smith '36 is President of the Triangle Club.

How effectively the Cottage Club has marched abreast of these surging times—through pre-war paradise, through the Dark Valley of 1917 and 1918, through Prosperity and Depression—is a story that might fill whole volumes. How admirably the great Club house, jocularly termed the “White Elephant of Prospect Street” when building, has fitted the institution to render an evergrowing service to an ever-greater Princeton is a tribute to the vision of the Board of Governors, the Building Committee, and the alumni—and that one alumnus above all others—who built it a generation ago. As an eminent American used to say, “Let’s look at the record!”

Nineteen-Seven reports “fortnightly Cottage Club gatherings to which prominent speakers were currently invited.” 1908 says “Out of town week-ending seldom indulged in.” 1909 “gave a dinner at the Club at which ex-President Patton and President Wilson were the speakers—with feeling running high.” 1910 and 1911 report that “during mid-year examinations some of us moved to the Club and lived there, in order to work in a quieter and more enjoyable atmosphere than that offered in our rooms.” In 1913 and 1914 “the Navy crews were the guests of the Club for the Regatta on Lake Carnegie” (constructed, by the way, at the same time as the present Cottage Club). 1915 records the formal opening and dedication of another “‘Pedlar’ Palmer gift—the Palmer Stadium, dedicated with the Dartmouth Game, October 24, 1914 (Howard Froelick '15 was Manager of the team). It places the Cottage Club as the gathering place for all the clans at the very center of Princeton athletics—with University Field on one side and the Stadium on the other.” 1916 and 1917 boast one of the most active records in all the annals of the Club on the part of the 1917 section (three Phi Beta Kappa keys, six Varsity P’s, two Senior Class Officers, Chairman of Class Day Committee with four other members, Class Day Presentation Speaker, Class Historian, etc., etc., and one novelist—“F. Scott Fitzgerald '17, Triangle Club impresario, writing book and lyrics for the show, and beginning his novel This Side of Paradise in the Cottage Club Library." 1918 billeted the Army officers at the Club. 1920 writes that "the Yale crew stayed at the Club during the time of the regatta—and we had throughout the year a series of prominent speakers at Club dinners." 1921 "boarded and fed the famous University of California crew at the Cottage when it came to Princeton for the regatta." 1922 marks "the occasion of a luncheon at the Cottage Club given in honor of Earl French of Ypres, when the University awarded him an honorary degree. Colonel George W. Burleigh '92 was in charge. The guests besides those mentioned included Major-General H. L. Scott, President Hibben, Bishop Matthews of New Jersey, Major-General André Brewster, who was at one time General Pershing's Chief of Staff, Lieutenant Paul B. Kelly, Coast Artillery U.S.A., aide of General Brewster, Sidney S. Lamert, civilian aide to Earl French, and William E. Stevenson '22, President of the Cottage Club."

Nineteen Twenty-Three saw the opening of the Baker Hockey Rink, with H. Gray Treadwell '09 serving as Treasurer of its Building Committee. 1924 witnessed "the undergraduate revolution" when Henry S. Pole '24, President of the Cottage Club "as Chairman of the Senior Council represented that body's view of the question: 'Is Princeton's Student Government Satisfactory?'" In 1929 and again in 1933 "various members of the Oxford, Cambridge, and Cornell track teams were quartered at the Club during the international track meets." 1930 saw William D. Barfield '30 win the Pyne Honor Prize. 1931 and 1932 "continued the Cottage policy of monthly lectures at the Club." 1933 and 1934 "moved the pool and billiard tables up to the second floor to provide more room now so urgently needed downstairs." In 1934 and 1935 "other visiting athletes for the invitation track meets again made their headquarters at Cottage—including J. E. Lovelock, the celebrated British miler who, representing Oxford, had established a new world's record on the Palmer Stadium track in the 1933 international meet." 1935 saw "an even larger increase in the alumni attendance at the Club all through the year—and two very enjoyable Alumni-Undergraduate Dinners were held, the first at the Union Club in New York, the second at the Cottage Club in Princeton."

In addition to all the other countless useful purposes which the Cottage Club has served since the building of its present house—as roughly indicated in the foregoing list—the University Athletic Association, with Asa S. Bushnell '21 as its Graduate Manager of Athletics, initiated two years ago the policy of entertaining parents of all members of visiting and varsity football teams on the days of certain major games, at luncheon in the Cottage Library. It demands a big house to accommodate the daily needs of anywhere from forty to sixty Seniors and Juniors—or (who knows?) it may be eighty to one hundred as the University keeps on growing! It used to be only thirty to forty—sometimes twenty. It requires a still bigger house to serve the multitudinous requirements of an alumni membership, which has grown with Princeton from eight in 1888 to almost one thousand in 1936. But it has required something far greater than a big house to build the “Cottage” of 1936. For what started as a cottage, through the example of its founders has carried on through fifty years of tightly packed undergraduate happiness and service, has outlived its initial size and name—until the very physical dimension of its great house has become instead a symbol of the great hearts that have created it the club it is today—opening its doors wide for the entertainment and comfort of Princeton’s distinguished friends and visitors . . . with the gracious and memorable hospitality of The New Cottage.

Undergraduate activities these past twenty years can be recorded in characteristically brilliant terms. Princetonian Chairmen have included J. Bruce ’14, J. V. Forrestal ’15, W. A. Kirkland ’19, and L. T. Merchant ’26; Triangle Club Presidents have included J. A. Larkin ’13, W. M. Ellis ’15, W. R. Stuhler, Jr., ’23, W. H. Smith ’24, H. T. Tasker ’32, S. D. Johnson ’35, and W. H. Smith ’36; football Managers have included C. F. Buechner, Jr., ’20, T. D. Stevenson ’25, W. M. Collins, Jr., ’27, P. D. Millholland ’28 (with C. R. Moeser ’28 as Captain), G. H. Shields, III, ’31, and C. D. Brooks ’32. L. K. Firestone ’31 and R. C. Firestone ’33 were polo Captains. W. Reinmund ’31, like G. B. LeVan ’36, won the Kafer Baseball Cup; and W. D. Barfield, Jr., ’30 (also like LeVan) won the Poe Football Cup. W. E. Stevenson ’22, J. T. Witherspoon ’22, and W. W. Butterworth ’25 were Rhodes Scholars—while twenty Cottage Club members these past twenty years have been awarded Phi Beta Kappa keys.

To a greater degree, perhaps, than any other institution of its kind, the University Cottage Club has the facilities and the temperament to render the University a service of ever-increasing scope. The unsurpassed participation of its members over half a century in every form of undergraduate enterprise and graduate activity has given it a breadth of interest as broad as the bright horizon of Princeton itself. Under the inspired guidance of Ralph Tompkins ’21 as Chairman of the Board of Governors, it is today mobilizing its vast resources of Princeton leadership and experience in a fusion of alumni and undergraduate interest destined to make the celebration of its Fiftieth Anniversary memorable, both as a memorialization of the past, and as a promise for the future.

UNDERGRADUATE AND GRADUATE ACTIVITIES

THE records which follow, of undergraduate and graduate activities, are based primarily on detailed questionnaires which one member of each section was asked to fill out and return to the committee. These questionnaires have been supplemented by information from various class records, Bric-a-Bracs, and other sources. A certain amount of error, however, is inevitable in any tabulation of this sort and the committee hopes that the readers of this book will, under the circumstances, be inclined to regard with more or less leniency any mistakes which may be discovered in these lists.

In the list of occupations which members of the Club have followed after graduating are included the names of deceased members as well as living. This has been done with the thought that it is more interesting to know that there have been, for instance, 113 Cottage men who have engaged in the practice of law than merely to state that 94 alumni members are now lawyers. It will also be noted that several men appear in more than one classification; it is, of course, obvious that a man may either simultaneously or intermittently be engaged in more than one pursuit. In general, however, a man has been listed only in the field to which he appears to have devoted most of his energies. It is unfortunate that in many cases a man's occupation was not clearly indicated or was of such individualized a nature that no exact classification seemed to fit; these names, together with those in a few other occupations not listed in the original questionnaire, have been grouped under the heading "miscellaneous."

With respect to undergraduate activities, the recommendations of the University Athletic Association have been followed in determining what names should appear in the lists of members of the various teams.

CONSTITUTION

(AS AMENDED JUNE 10, 1904)

ARTICLE I

OBJECT, NAME AND MEMBERSHIP

1. This society, incorporated for social, intellectual and recreative purposes, is named "THE UNIVERSITY COTTAGE CLUB OF PRINCETON, NEW JERSEY," and shall consist of five classes of members as defined by Article VI.

ARTICLE II

OFFICERS AND THEIR DUTIES

1. (As amended June 1923.) The officers of the Club shall be a Chairman of the Board of Governors, a President, a Vice-President, a Secretary, a Treasurer, a Financial Secretary, and an Assistant Treasurer, and such other officers as the Board may from time to time appoint.

2. (As amended June 1923.) The Chairman of the Board of Governors shall be a Graduate member and be elected by the Board from among its members. He shall preside at all meetings of the Board and shall perform such other duties as the Board of Governors may assign to him.

3. The President shall be an Active member and be elected by the Active members from their Junior Section. He shall preside at all meetings of the Active members, and with the Secretary sign all written contracts and obligations of the Club, and perform such other duties as the Board of Governors or the Active members may assign to him.

4. (As amended June 1923.) The Vice-President shall be an Active member and be elected by the Active members from their Junior Section. In the absence of the President, he shall preside at all meetings of the Active members, and shall perform such other duties as the Board of Governors or the Active members may assign to him.

5. The Secretary shall be a Graduate or Associate member and be elected by the Board of Governors from among its members. He shall give notice of all meetings of the Club and of the Board of Governors, and keep minutes of all such meetings. He shall conduct the correspondence of the Club and of the Board of Governors, keep a record of the names and addresses of all members, and furnish to the Treasurer information as to all changes affecting the membership of the Club. With the President he shall sign all contracts and obligations of the Club, and shall be custodian of its seal.

6. The Treasurer shall be a Graduate or Associate member and be elected by the Board of Governors from among its members. He shall collect all entrance fees and all dues of Graduate, Associate and Faculty members, keep the accounts of the Club and report thereon at each regular meeting of the Board of Governors, and at other times upon request. He shall have custody and disburse all moneys of the Club, except such as shall be left in charge of the Financial Secretary under the provisions of Section 7 of this Article. He shall notify all persons elected to Honorary, Faculty and Associate membership of their election, and have supervision over the Financial Secretary and Assistant Treasurer and audit their books and accounts.

7. (As amended June 1923.) The Financial Secretary shall be an Active member and shall be elected by the outgoing and incoming Undergraduate Officers immediately after the April meeting of the Active members of the Club, as provided in Article V, Section 5. He shall take office immediately. He shall call all meetings of the Active members and keep minutes thereof and shall keep all accounts of the operation of the Club, collect and have custody of all moneys received in payment of house accounts and make all disbursements incident to the current operation of the Club, under the direction of the House Committee. He shall notify all persons elected to active membership of their election.

8. The Assistant Treasurer shall be an Active member and be appointed by the President and Financial Secretary from the Junior Section, such appointment to be made on or before the first Monday in October in each year. He shall make out and forward the bills of all members for house charges, and under the direction of the Financial Secretary assist in keeping books and accounts of the current operations of the Club.

ARTICLE III

BOARD OF GOVERNORS

1. (As amended June 1930.) The affairs and property of the Club shall be managed by a committee of twenty-five Governors to consist of the President, Vice-President, Financial Secretary, ex-officio, and twenty-two Graduate or Associate members, of whom at least fourteen shall be Graduate members. The Graduate and Associate members of the Board shall be divided into three classes of seven members each, one class to be elected at each annual meeting of the Club to replace the outgoing class and take office immediately. The one remaining Graduate member of the Board shall be elected by the Board at its June meeting each year from the then Senior Section of the Club and shall serve upon the Board of Governors for the term of one year. If a vacancy should occur in the position of the Governor holding office for one year, his successors shall be chosen from the same class by the remaining members of the Board of Governors for the unexpired term. The Governors, except the President, Vice-President and Financial Secretary and the Governor serving for one year, shall hold office for three years and until the third annual meeting after their election.

2. The Board of Governors shall at its first regular meeting in each year, on dates to be fixed each year, elect from its own body a Chairman, a Secretary and a Treasurer who shall hold office for one year and until their successors are elected and qualify.

3. (As amended June 1930.) The Board of Governors, or any Executive Committee appointed by it, shall hold a meeting once each month, except during the months of July and August, at Princeton or elsewhere, as the Board may determine, and on dates to be fixed by the Chairman or by the Board, provided that a regular meeting of the Board of Governors shall be held on the day of the Annual Meeting of the Club at an hour prior to the Annual Meeting, to be fixed by the Chairman. Special meetings may be called by order of the Chairman at any time on three days' notice and shall be called by the Secretary upon the written request of three members of the Board. Five members present at any regular or special meeting shall constitute a quorum.

4. The Board of Governors may fill any vacancy in its body by election of a Graduate or Associate member to hold office until the next ensuing Annual Meeting of the Club.

5. The Board of Governors shall at each Annual Meeting of the Club submit a written or printed report of the affairs of the Club.

6. The interpretation of this Constitution shall rest in the Board of Governors and its decision thereon shall be final.

7. (As amended June 1923.) There shall be an Advisory Council selected by the Board of Governors from time to time from members who have rendered signal service to the Club. They shall receive notices of all meetings of the Board of Governors and shall be privileged to attend the same, without voting power.

8. (As amended June 1930.) The Board of Governors may appoint from among its members an Executive Committee of not less than five, which shall hold such meetings from time to time as may be determined upon by the Board of Governors, or as may be called by the Chairman of the Board of Governors who shall be a member of the Executive Committee ex-officio. The Executive Committee shall report to the Board of Governors and shall have such powers and duties as may be delegated to it by the Board.

ARTICLE IV

HOUSE COMMITTEE

1. (As amended June 1923.) The executive management of the Club House shall be vested in a House Committee of six members which shall act under the general direction of the Board of Governors and have supervision over the Club House, grounds and servants, the rates of purchase and sale of supplies and shall generally attend to the interior management of the Club.

2. (As amended June 1923.) The House Committee shall consist of the Vice-President, the Financial Secretary, the Assistant Treasurer, two Active members to be appointed by the President and one Graduate or Associate member to be appointed by the Chairman of the Board; such appointments to be made on or before the first Monday in October in each year.

3. The House Committee shall meet at least once in each month except during July and August. It shall elect from its body a Chairman, who shall assign to the various members their special duties and who shall, ex-officio, have the right to be present at all meetings of the Board of Governors, but without the privilege of voting thereat. The Assistant Treasurer shall be ex-officio Secretary of the House Committee and keep minutes of its meeting in permanent form and submit the same to the Board of Governors at each regular meeting.

4. The House Committee shall have authority to make and enforce all such rules and regulations for the government of members and management of the Club as it shall deem necessary, such regulations to be known as "House Rules," provided that no House Rule so made shall become effective until it shall have been submitted to and approved at a meeting of the Board of Governors.

ARTICLE V

MEETINGS

1. (As amended June 1930.) The Annual Meeting of the Club shall be held in the month of May in each year, either in Princeton, New Jersey, or New York City, or elsewhere as the Board of Governors may determine. At each Annual Meeting seven Graduate or Associate members shall be elected to the Board of Governors to succeed the Governors whose terms of office have expired, and any vacancies in the Board shall be filled for their unexpired terms in like manner.

2. Special Meetings of the Club may be called by the Chairman of the Board and shall be called by the Secretary upon written request of any twenty-five members.

3. (As amended June 1930.) At all meetings of the Club, twenty-five members shall constitute a quorum, and a majority of those present in person or by proxy shall be necessary to any action, provided that this Constitution shall in no event be amended, except upon compliance with the provisions of Article XV hereof.

4. The Secretary shall mail to every member a notice of each Annual or Special Meeting of the Club, at least ten days before the date set for such meeting.

5. (As amended June 1923.) The regular meeting of the Active members of the Club shall be held at the Club House once each month, except during the months of July and August at a date to be determined by the President. At the monthly meeting in April, which shall be held during the first two weeks of that month, the Active members shall elect from their Junior Section a President and a Vice-President to take office immediately, and to hold the same for one year and until their successors are elected and qualify.

6. Special Meetings of the Active members may be called by the President, and shall be called by the Financial Secretary upon the written request of nine Active members.

7. At all meetings of the Active members fifty per cent. of the entire Active membership shall constitute a quorum, and a majority vote of those present be necessary to any action.

8. Personal or written notice of every meeting of the Active members shall be given by the President or Financial Secretary to each Active member at least three days before the date set for such meeting.

9. A notice stating the time, place and purpose of each meeting of the Club or Active membership, shall be posted on the bulletin board in the Club House at least three days before the date set for any such meeting.

10. In the event of the absence of any officer charged with the duty of presiding over or acting as Secretary of any meeting, such meeting shall, upon organization, elect from those present a member to take the place of such absentee.

ARTICLE VI

MEMBERS

1. (As amended May 1933.) The members of the Club shall be divided into five classes, viz., Honorary, Associate, Graduate, Active and Faculty members, all of whom shall be entitled to vote at meetings of the Club.

The Board of Governors may create and discontinue such other special classes of membership as they may deem advisable.

2. (As amended June 1923.) Any distinguished gentlemen who have not been Resident members of Princeton University shall be eligible to election as Honorary members. Members of the Faculty of Princeton University, whether Graduates of said University or not, shall be eligible to election as Faculty members.

3. Any person who has been a Resident member of Princeton University and whose class has been graduated from such University, shall be eligible to election as an Associate member.

4. Every person who has been an Active member shall, upon graduation of his class from Princeton University, become a Graduate member unless he shall continue a Resident member of Princeton University, in which case he may remain an Active member upon designating his desire so to do to the Secretary.

5. (As amended June 1911.) Any regular or special member of the Sophomore, Junior or Senior Class of Princeton University in good standing, shall be eligible to election as an Active member, and also such members of graduated classes as shall have designated their desire to remain Active members pursuant to the provisions of Section 4 of this Article. The Active members other than such as are members of graduated classes shall be divided into two sections to be known as the Senior and Junior Sections; the Senior Section shall consist of all Active members in the Senior Class and the Junior Section of all Active members in the Junior Class of Princeton University.

6. Any member of Princeton University, elected an Active member, and who shall have qualified as such but who shall have left Princeton University prior to the graduation of his class, shall upon severing his connection with the University, become an Inactive member.

7. The term "Resident member of Princeton University" as used in this Article shall embrace every person who shall have been matriculated in said University or its predecessor "The College of New Jersey," as a regular or special undergraduate or graduate student.

ARTICLE VII

ELECTION OF MEMBERS

1. (As amended June 1923.) Honorary and Faculty members shall be proposed and seconded in writing by Graduate or Associate members and be elected by the Board of Governors.

2. Associate members shall be proposed and seconded in writing by Graduate or Associate members and be elected by the Board of Governors. If any candidate for Associate membership shall have been a member of the Class of 1888 or any subsequent class (except the Class of 1889) of Princeton University, the Secretary shall mail to each member of the Club in such class and in the classes graduated one year before and one year after such class (unless one of them shall be the class of 1889) notice of such candidate's proposal at least thirty days prior to the meeting at which such candidate's name will be voted upon. The unanimous vote of all members of the Board of Governors present and voting at the meeting shall be required to elect to Associate membership, provided that any member of the Board unable to be present at such meeting may through another member of the Board cast a written ballot in such election, and provided further that if any three members of the classes entitled to notice of any candidate's proposal shall in writing addressed to the Secretary protest against the election of such candidate his name shall not be considered by the Board unless he be renominated for election at a subsequent meeting.

3. (As amended June 1924.) Election of Honorary, Faculty and Associate members shall be held at the regular meeting of the Board next preceding the Annual Meeting of the Club in each year or any special meeting of the Board duly called for that purpose, and the Secretary shall mail a notice of the names of all individuals proposed for Honorary, Faculty or Associate membership, to each member of the Board of Governors at least thirty days prior to the meeting at which such candidates will be voted on, and shall also cause to be posted on the bulletin board of the Club the names of all persons regularly proposed and seconded for Honorary, Faculty or Associate membership at least ten days prior to the date set for such meeting.

4. (As amended June 1925.) Active members shall be elected from the Senior, Junior, and Sophomore Classes of Princeton University only, by an Admissions Committee consisting of six Seniors, seven Juniors and four Graduates. The Senior members of the Admissions Committee shall be chosen by the Seniors, the Junior members by the Juniors and the Graduate members by the Board of Governors. Any vacancies occurring shall be filled in like manner. The Admissions Committee shall have exclusive and final control of elections of Active members, subject to rules adopted by the Board of Governors.

5. (As amended May 1933.) Members of any special class created by the Board of Governors in accordance with Section 1 of Article VI shall be elected in the same manner as Honorary members.

ARTICLE VIII

ENTRANCE FEE AND DUES

1. All Associate members and all Active members elected from the Junior and Senior Classes of Princeton University shall, within one month after notification of their election, pay to the Treasurer an entrance fee of $50; all Active members elected from the Sophomore Class of Princeton University, shall pay to the Treasurer an entrance fee of Fifty Dollars, on or before the first Monday in October next ensuing after their election.

2. (As amended June 1923.) All Active members of the Club resident in Princeton shall pay such weekly charges as may be necessary to meet the expense of operating the Club, the amounts to be determined from time to time by the House Committee.

3. (As amended May 1934.) Faculty members, and Graduate members during the first three years after their graduation, shall pay annual dues of Five Dollars. All Associate members and Graduate members (except as above provided) shall pay annual dues of Ten Dollars. All Associate members and Graduate members (except as above provided) shall pay annual dues of Ten Dollars, until the class to which such members belong shall have been graduated for thirty years, at which time the annual dues of such Associate and Graduate members shall cease. Any Associate,

Graduate or Faculty member may, however, by payment to the Treasurer of the Club, of One Hundred Fifty Dollars in addition to the entrance fee required of him and all dues and charges accrued and owing to the Club at the time of such payment, be exempt for life from the payment of any further annual dues. Any such member availing himself of the privileges granted by this section shall, however, in all respects other than the matter of dues, be and remain subject to all the provisions of this Constitution and any rules made in pursuance thereof relating to the class of membership to which he shall then or may thereafter belong. Nothing herein contained shall be construed to require the payment of annual dues by any member who may have been exempted therefrom by compliance with the provisions of Section 4 of Article VII of the Club's Constitution as the same was amended in June 1895.

4. (As amended June 1923.) The annual dues of Associate, Graduate and Faculty members shall be payable in advance on the first day of November in each year. At least ten days prior to such date the Treasurer shall mail to each of such members not exempt from payment of dues under Section 3 of this Article, a notice thereof, and if the same are not paid on the first day of December following a second notice shall be sent to all in arrears. If any member shall not have paid his annual dues on the first day of February thereafter, such defaulting member shall be suspended from all privileges of the Club until his dues are paid and his name be posted on the bulletin board in the Club House and a third notice be sent him. On the first day of April in each year the Treasurer shall report to the Board of Governors the names of all members in arrears for annual dues and the Board may at its option without further notice expel any such member from the Club.

ARTICLE IX

SUSPENSION AND EXPULSION

1. Any member may be suspended or expelled for cause by a majority vote of all the members of the Board of Governors, one month's notice in writing having been given to such member with information as to the charges preferred against him and an opportunity to be heard thereon, provided that in cases of suspension or expulsion for non-payment of dues no notice shall be required beyond that prescribed by Section 4 of Article VIII thereof.

ARTICLE X

REMOVAL OF OFFICERS AND MEMBERS OF THE BOARD OF GOVERNORS AND HOUSE COMMITTEE

1. (As amended June 1923.) The President, Vice-President, Financial Secretary and Assistant Treasurer may be removed from their respective offices by vote of two-thirds of all the Active members of the Club at any meeting of the Active membership.

2. The Chairman of the Board, the Secretary and the Treasurer may be removed from their respective offices by majority vote of all the members of the Board of Governors at any regular or special meeting of such Board.

3. Any member of the Board of Governors may be removed therefrom by a vote of a majority of the whole Board at any regular or special meeting.

4. Any member of the House Committee may be removed therefrom by vote of two-thirds of all the Active members of the Club at any meeting of the Active membership.

5. In case of the removal of any officer or governor the voting shall be by ballot and the call for the meeting at which such vote is to be taken shall state the removal contemplated.

ARTICLE XI

NOMINATING COMMITTEE

1. The Board of Governors at its regular meeting next preceding the Annual Meeting of the Club in each year, shall appoint a committee of three members, not members of the Board, who shall nominate a ticket of candidates for the Board of Governors to be voted at the next Annual Meeting.

ARTICLE XII

NOTICES

1. Any notice required by this Constitution shall be deemed and held to have been duly given when deposited in the United States mail enclosed in a postpaid sealed envelope addressed to the last known post office address or place of residence of the member addressed as the same shall appear upon the record of members kept by the Secretary.

ARTICLE XIII

CLUB'S PROPERTY

1. No property of the Club, real or personal, shall be mortgaged or pledged except upon a three-fourths vote of all the members of the Board of Governors and the written consent of fifty per cent. of the members of the Club.

2. All moneys paid to the Treasurer in lieu of annual dues for life pursuant to Section 3 of Article VIII hereof shall be held by him in an account separate and distinct from the Club's general fund and only interest accruing thereon or income derived from investments thereof, made pursuant to the provisions of Section 3 of this Article shall be used for the general purposes of the Club.

3. The Board of Governors shall be authorized to set apart moneys out of the surplus receipts or earnings of the Club to establish a fund or funds for the maintenance and improvement of the Club's property, to accept any donations of money or other property and to hold the same upon the conditions specified by the donors, and may at its discretion through the Treasurer or a Committee of the Board, invest all such funds in securities specified by the laws of the States of New York or New Jersey as legal investments for Savings Banks.

ARTICLE XIV

INVESTMENT COMMITTEE

1. (As amended June 1930.) The Board of Governors shall appoint from their number an Investment Committee of not less than three. This Committee shall have entire charge of the investment of any surplus moneys of the Club, or of any other money received by the Club as gifts or bequests, except that such funds may only be invested in such securities as are from time to time constituted legal investments for life insurance companies under the laws of the State of New York.

'04 AND '05 SECTIONS, 1904

'05 AND '06 SECTIONS, 1905

'06 AND '07 SECTIONS, 1906

ARTICLE XV

AMENDMENTS

1. (As amended June 1930.) This Constitution may be amended at any Annual or Special Meeting of the Club by a vote of two-thirds of the members present in person or by proxy, but for this purpose, seventy-five members shall be required to constitute a quorum; provided that Section 1 of Article XIII shall, in no event, be amended except upon a three-fourths vote of all the members of the Board of Governors and the written consent of fifty per cent. of the members of the Club, in addition to the vote heretofore specified.

2. Proposed amendments to this Constitution shall be presented to the Secretary in writing, signed by at least five members, and the Secretary shall mail to each member of the Club a copy thereof with notice of the meeting at which the same will be voted upon at least ten days before the date set for such meeting.

ARTICLE XVI

(As amended May 1933.) The Board of Governors

shall appoint a committee to cooperate with the Treasurer on the subject of endowment funds and donations to the Club. The special purpose of this committee is to stress particularly the desirability for members to make special provision in their wills for leaving properties to the Club—cash for endowments or books, records, maps, decorations, letters of personal or historical value, etc., etc. This committee will cooperate closely with the Memorial Committee.

ARTICLE XVII

(As amended May 1933.) The Board of Governors shall appoint a committee to be known as a Memorial Committee, whose duty it will be to collect and assemble in the Club House, all available material of interest to the members either for a personal or historical reason—photographs, illustrations, letters, documents, citations of honor and merit, or any record of interest and esteem personally affecting some member of the Club; the intention being that in time the walls of the Club will reflect more effectively than at present, some of the history of the membership.

HOUSE RULES

1. The Club House will be open for the use of members from seven o'clock a.m. until twelve o'clock midnight during term time of Princeton University and during vacations at such times as the House Committee shall specify.

2. The billiard room will be closed on Sundays and no games of any nature allowed in the Club House on that day.

3. The tariff and regulations for use of billiard and pool tables and tennis courts, the prices of bedrooms, meals, extra service and supplies, will be fixed and settled by the House Committee and a schedule thereof shall be posted on the bulletin board in the Club House.

4. No betting or playing of any kind for stakes is allowed in the Club.

5. The use of wines, malt and spirituous liquors is prohibited in the Club House, provided that the House Committee may suspend the application of this rule to any Annual Dinner of the Club and to any luncheon or dinner served in a private dining room at which no active member is present.

6. Glassware, crockery and other furniture of the Club broken or injured shall be replaced by any member responsible for the damage.

7. The club servants are forbidden to perform services requiring their absence from the Club House.

8. No members or guests shall give any gratuity to any servant of the Club.

9. No dog shall be allowed in the Club House.

10. The wearing of hob-nailed boots in the Club House is prohibited.

11. No member shall take from the Club House any book, periodical or newspaper or any other article owned by the Club.

12. The library shall be reserved at all hours for reading purposes, and no loud conversation or disturbance of any kind will be permitted therein.

13. No book, periodical or filed newspaper shall be removed from the library.

14. Graduate, Associate and Inactive members shall upon visiting the Club House enter their names in the Club Register.

15. No member of the Freshman or Sophomore classes of Princeton University shall be admitted to the Club House.

16. All suggestions and complaints relating to the interior management of the Club shall be addressed to the House Committee in writing.

17. The privilege of the Club, will, at the request of any member, be extended for a period not exceeding one week, to any gentleman other than a resident member of Princeton University. The name and residence of each visitor, the date of his introduction and the name of the member introducing him shall be entered in the visitors' book.

18. No member shall introduce more than two guests at the same time and the privileges of the Club shall not be extended to the same person more than twice in any calendar year without obtaining leave from the House Committee.

19. Members introducing guests shall be responsible for all debts incurred by them to the Club, and the House Committee, may at its discretion withdraw the privileges of any guest.

20. The use of bedrooms is restricted to members and shall in no event be extended to their guests except with the express consent of the House Committee.

21. House accounts of Active members are payable within one week of rendition, and if not fully discharged within that time 25 per cent. of the amount remaining unpaid shall be added and the names of delinquents with the amounts due the Club from each shall be posted on the bulletin board in the Club House. Any member whose account remains unpaid at the expiration of thirty days from the date of rendering the same, shall be refused further credit, and his delinquency be referred to the Board of Governors for action under Article IX of the Constitution.

22. House accounts of Honorary, Associate, Graduate and Inactive members are payable upon leaving the Club House or within one week after date of rendition. If not paid within that time a second notice shall be sent to each delinquent and his name with the amount of his indebtedness be posted on the bulletin board of the Club. Any accounts remaining unpaid after sixty days from the date of rendering shall be referred to the Board of Governors.

23. When the House accounts of any member reaches twenty dollars, his credit shall be suspended until his indebtedness has been discharged.

24. The House Committee may impose fines and penalties for the infringement of any of these House Rules and its determination in that regard and its interpretation of these House Rules shall be final.
